

20,000 NEW PUPILS ARE IN NO HURRY TO ENTER SCHOOL

First Day's Registration Small in All Parts of the Greater City.

BIG RUSH NEXT MONDAY

710,000 Children Expected to
Be Enrolled as Against 690-
121 Last Fall.

The additional 20,000 or more children that are expected to gaze in open-mouthed wonder and frank adoration at "Miss Teacher" when the public schools begin their sessions next Monday morning were a bit slow in getting their names entered as pupils to-day, the first of the three days of advance registration.

All the schools of Greater New York threw their doors open at 9 o'clock this morning. Principals and assistants, drafted from the army of school marines who have been hastening back to the city from their vacations, were in their places ready for the "grand rush." But there was no grand rush.

At many of the schools the registration corps waited anywhere from twenty minutes to an hour for the first candidates. This was as true of the congested districts, to-day, as of the rest of the city. At no school portal were there more than twenty-five to fifty children and mothers waiting.

ABLE WILLIAMS and Angelina Carmelo and Peter Schmolz didn't get around to the schools in their neighborhood because their mothers hadn't heard it was time to take their four and five-year-old hopefuls around to get admission cards for the kindergarten and primary classes. Hortense and Reginald are still romping about at mountain and seashore resorts, and won't get back to their uptown homes until Saturday night.

INMAN SCHOOL PUPILS GO ON PROVISIONALLY.

Of the groups that did gather about the schools to-day by far the larger number were "old stagers" who had flunked in last year's examinations and had spent their vacations in the summer schools "making good." Armed with the certificates showing that they had passed the summer school examinations, they rushed eagerly to be entered provisionally in higher classes. Supt. Maxwell said these "continuation classes" at the summer schools had grown to the number of 14, averaging fifty pupils each.

The rush will begin Monday. Last September 6, 1911 children were registered the first school day; this year the number anticipated is about 710,000. Supt. Maxwell gave an interesting report of the following figures of anticipated increase in the various public schools this year:

"The registration in the elementary schools in 1910 was 644,091; this year the number expected is about 665,000. The registration in the High Schools in September, 1910, was 28,354; this year the number will probably reach 30,000; the registration for the Trade Days Schools for this year is expected to show an increase from 22,000 to 25,000."

"I do not anticipate any serious increase in part-time classes this year," continued Mr. Maxwell. "During the last school year there was an increase of about 11,000, the figures being 64,441 in September, 1910, and 62,371 in June, 1911. We cannot hope to cut the number down this year because for the past year and a half we have had no money with which to build new schools. For 1912 we expect to have a different report to make."

NEW ACCOMMODATIONS READY NOW AND IN NOVEMBER.

"For this year the additional accommodations we shall have are as follows: a wing for School No. 40 at Prospect Avenue and Jennings Street, containing 19 rooms; a new building at Prospect Avenue and One Hundred and Seventy-seventh Street, 46 rooms; an addition to No. 19 at South Thirtieth Street, 20 rooms; an addition to No. 1 at Van Alst Avenue, Long Island City, 20 rooms; a new school in Woodhaven, 24 rooms."

"These will be ready this month. In November we hope to open a new school at West Houston and Varick Streets, with sixty-four rooms; accommodate 2,200 children, and another at Lott and Hopkinson Avenues, in Brooklyn. We had hoped to open a new school at Schenectady Avenue and Eastern Parkway next Monday, which would have enabled us, by shifting children from schools in the neighborhood, to accommodate from 4,000 to 5,000 part-time pupils, but a strike among the marble workers caused an exasperating delay, and even though the men are now working night and day we cannot hope to have the school ready on time."

WOMAN NEARLY DROWNS.

Almost Drowned Rescued Under at Coney Island Beach.

Mrs. Grace Stageswald of No. 2,509 West Fifth Street, Coney Island, was carried out beyond her depth to-day while bathing at Coney Island between the Municipal Baths and Bather's Bathing Pavilion. Her struggle in the surf attracted the attention of John T. Snyder of 225 West Thirtieth Street, another bather, who went to her assistance.

Mrs. Stageswald grabbed him about the neck in her frantic efforts to keep afloat and nearly dragged him under. He managed to get her to a life line and then waved for help. Life Guards John McMonigle and Morris Jordan swam out several hundred feet to the rescue of the pair and brought them both to shore. Mrs. Stageswald was unconscious, but was revived. Snyder was exhausted, but left for home an hour later.

ORIGINAL FASHIONS: MODEL FOR PATTERN

All questions concerning designs and materials of dresses should be addressed to the Fashion Editor of The Evening World. No patterns for designs in this column can be obtained, but with the description furnished it is a simple matter to work out patterns.

REMARKS.

A new and distinctive feature of this department is the illustration of the different pieces of the pattern necessary for the making of the garment shown. Patterns in regular sizes cannot be obtained, but with the use of a pantograph, the illustration which is 1-16 of graph, the illustration can be enlarged to any size desired.

DESCRIPTION.

This charming afternoon gown is made of black and white satin, the skirt slightly gathered over the hips. A fitted piece of white satin heavily embroidered with black soutache trims the lower part of the waist and forms panels on either hip, also a band of it forms the lower part of the sleeves. A crush of purple satin showing in the front of the waist and forming a flat bow in back gives an effective finish to the gown.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

MRS. J. O. S.—Messaline or satin the same shade as your material in combination with it, unless you made it in strictly evening style, when heavy cream all-over lace could compose the upper part of the skirt and the lower portion by a satin cording at the belt line. Wave large revers of satin, which form a collar in the back, cross to the left side in front, where a frog of satin cording fastens the coat.

Feather bands will be worn and it is only a matter of taste which you desire for your hat.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CONDEMNS BROWN FIGHT GYMNASIUM

Commissioner Also Recommends Improvements at Garden, Sulzer's and Fairmount.

Fire Commissioner Johnson received reports to-day from the inspectors he detailed to make examinations of the buildings of the various athletic clubs licensed by the Boxing Commission to hold boxing contests. None of the buildings is entirely satisfactory from a fire hazard standpoint, but only one is unqualifiedly condemned, and that is the quarters occupied by Brown's Gymnasium on the third floor at No. 117 West Twenty-third Street.

Commissioner Johnson says of this place: "It is totally unfit for the purpose for which it has been licensed. The Fire Commissioner can only view this and other places licensed to entertain crowds with boxing matches from a fire hazard standpoint. In that light it is difficult to imagine a more dangerous place. However, the Fire Commissioner does not control the structural arrangements of the places for which boxing lessons have been granted. He can only recommend that they be made safe."

Brown's gymnasium is on the third floor. To reach the auditorium where boxing matches are held it is necessary to pass through three rooms full of lockers containing clothing, to ascend a flight of nine steps 8 feet 8 inches wide and then climb another flight of five steps. The exit stairway to Twenty-third Street is only 8 feet 8 inches wide and that to Twenty-fourth Street is only 8 feet wide. The stairs are of wood, and the flights are full of turnings and narrow landings. The side exit to the roof of an adjoining building is condemned by the inspectors as unsafe. More aisle space is called for, and the installation of fire extinguishers, water buckets and axes is ordered.

A wider door for exit on the west side of the Fairmount Athletic Club in the Bronx is recommended, with orders for additional extinguishers, water buckets and axes. In Madison Square Garden, St. Nicholas Rink, occupied by the Twentieth Century A. C., and Sulzer's Harlem River Park, occupied by the Madison A. C., additional aisle space is recommended. In every instance it is recommended that the seats be made stationary.

SEVEN DIED IN FIRE.

Other Victims Believed in Ruins of Juneau Hotel.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Sept. 6.—Seven persons are known to be dead as a result of the fire which destroyed the Juneau Hotel and the McGrath Building last Sunday night. Other victims are being sought in the ruins.

The dead included William A. Southworth, a machinist, whose mother, sister and two brothers reside in Lansing, Mich. Southworth died in a hospital several hours after the fire from burns.

Keene Continues to Gain.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—James H. Keene, the American financier, is progressing favorably since he underwent an operation for stomach trouble, and his condition to-day shows uninterrupted improvement.

DIX SENDS CALL FOR CONFERENCE ON LEGISLATURE

ALBANY, Sept. 6.—Two conferences have been planned by Gov. Dix for the purpose of mapping out a legislative programme and bringing the session, which reconvenes to-night after a six-weeks' recess, to an early adjournment. He expects to meet the legislative leaders late this afternoon to discuss the bill providing for a reapportionment of Congressional districts.

The Governor is anxious that this measure, which he understands will be ready for introduction to-night, shall provide a fair and equitable apportionment. At least five of the six new districts given to New York State will go to Greater New York.

The Governor plans to hold a second conference, probably early next week, to definitely decide on the programme to be carried out by the Legislature. He has invited his Cabinet, including several State officers, and the legislative leaders to attend the meeting, at which the fate of direct nominations legislation is expected to be definitely settled.

The Governor said he had not received any information regarding the work on the new charter for New York City, but believed the bill would be ready for introduction next week. He admitted that this measure might delay final adjournment. Another factor which may upset the plans for an early adjournment was the news from New York that Senator Wagner, majority leader in the upper house, had been operated on for appendicitis. Senator Wagner has had personal charge of the preparation of the Congressional reapportionment bill.

Assemblyman Ahearn of Kings has prepared for introduction a bill taking away from the Mayor of New York any veto power he may now possess over the award of subway contracts. It is planned in the new Charter to increase the Mayor's power in this respect.
